FDR Calls 'High Command' For Aid Talk

FDR Signs Bill Making U. S. Arsenal for Britain

President Roosevelt is pictured signing the bitterly-debated lease-lend bill, thus springing into action a law which will provide besieged Britain and other embattled democracies with U. S. tools of war to save them from threatened strangulation by aggressor nations. The president simultaneously announced that he will ask congress for $7,000,000,000 to carry out this "arsenal of democracy" program.

CONGRESS GETS REQUEST FOR SEVEN BILLIONS

House Leaders Get Ready To Map Tax Bill To Pay For Lease-Lend.

HULL WILL TESTIFY

Army, Navy Chiefs Called In as Assistance Program Gains Momentum.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — With congress awaiting his $7,000,000,000 British aid request, President Roosevelt today summoned his so-called "high command" for a White House conference, as house leaders announced they would start work on a new tax bill April 1 to help finance the huge program.

Developments were

1. Mr. Roosevelt spent the morning closeted with his budget director, Harold R. Smith, getting his letter to Speaker Rayburn ready to be read to the house at noon formally requesting the $7,000,000,000 appropriation.

2. The president called Secretary of State Hull, Secretary of Treasury Morgenthau, Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of Navy Knox, Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, Rear Admiral Robert Ingersol, acting chief of naval operations, and Smith.

3. Chairman Doughton (D., N. C.) of the house ways and means committee (which originates all taxing legislation) announced that hearings would commence April 1 on a new tax bill expected to boost federal levies at least $1,000,000,000 annually, possibly as much as $2,000,000,000.

4. Democratic leaders predicted congress would pass Mr. Roosevelt's requested $7,000,000,000 British aid appropriation within two weeks, despite indications that the size of the request might precipitate a bitter battle.

In requesting the "high command" to confer with him, the president, according to the White House, planned to go over his plans in detail with the cabinet

Reported Using Bulgaria Bases; Showdown Near

Yugoslavia Seen Ready to Yield to Nazi Demands for Alliance; RAF Blasts Kiel Base as British Admit London Palace Hit.

(By Associated Press)

German warplanes have already begun bombing Greek towns from bases in Bulgaria, it was reported today, as Adolf Hitler massed 500,000 troops on the frontiers of Greece and Turkey and signs pointed to an imminent showdown.

Yugoslav leaders gathered in Belgrade amid forecasts that she would capitulate quickly to Nazi demands that she join the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance.

In yielding, Yugoslavia presumably would open a new avenue for an expected German invasion of Greece.

Indications that the "zero hour" might be near were seen in these factors.

1. The steady southward movement of Nazi troops through Bulgaria, under way for 10 days, suddenly dwindled to a trickle.

2 German staff officers were reported to have disappeared from Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, and headed for field headquarters at Plovdiv—40 miles from the Greek border, 80 miles from Turkey.

3. Thousands of German and Bulgarian warplanes were placed for action, including siren-screaming Nazi bombers exploited with terrorizing effect in western Europe last spring

British sources at Istanbul quoted a Greek army officer as saying German planes had raided the town of Dede Agach in Grecian Thrace—likely striking-point of a German attack

Belgrade dispatches said Russia had promised Turkey she has nothing to fear from Soviet Red armies massed along the Danube, if she decides to fight on Greece's side.

Official German comment on the United States British-aid bill included this declaration in Berlin:

"Mr. Roosevelt is an unpredictable man. Let him send one convoy and . . . (The sentence was left dangling.) We are determined to torpedo everything that approaches England."

Hitler's high command asserted that naval and aerial attacks on Britain's supply lines from November through February had destroyed 2,037,000 tons of shipping. Only a few days ago, the British asserted Axis claims on sea losses were exaggerated 100 per cent.

Belatedly, the British government disclosed that Nazi bombs have damaged Buckingham palace, official residence of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, for the second time, shattering

Black Estate Wins In Personal Tax Action

Supreme Court Rules Immunity Section Of Intangible Law Valid; Decision Halts Collection of Assessments.

The estates of the late Frank B. Black of Mansfield and Mrs. Kate Hanna Harvey of Cleveland had won their fight today to keep from paying personal taxes for the period of 1926 to 1931.

In a decision in the two test cases, the Ohio supreme court today upheld the immunity section of the state intangible tax law which exempted property owners who paid their personal tax for 1932.

The decision was four to two to uphold the immunity clause. Judge William S. Hart did not participate in the Black case because his son was one of the attorneys for the plaintiff in the taxpayer's suit against the estate. Atty. Joseph A. Bayer was the Mansfield counsel for the plaintiff.

The long-awaited ruling halted a move in Richland county to assess and collect an estimated several hundred thousand dollars in personal taxes from the estate of the late Mr. Black who died in 1937.

Atty. Henry Huston of the firm of Weldon and Huston, counsel for the Black estate, said today that he expected a certificate of immunity within a few days to exempt the estate from payment of personal taxes for the five-year period.

It had been estimated by state tax officials that millions of dollars in back taxes for the five-year period might have been collected by Ohio counties had the court ruled the immunity clause unconstitutional.

The decision reversed a ruling of the state board of tax appeals which denied executors of the Black estate a certificate of im-

Police Hunt Killer of Mother of 9 Near Youngstown.

YOUNGSTOWN —(INS)— Police today intensified their search for the murderer of Mrs. Alphonsus Foley, 39, mother of nine children, whose body was found in a field not far from her home.

Mrs. Foley was on her way to visit her mother when the shooting occurred.

JAIL PRIEST AS GIRL'S TORTURER

Ashland Clergyman Held as Girl, 16, Claims He Whipped Her While In Nude.

ASHLAND—Rev. William E. Rooney, 47, pastor of St. Edward's Catholic church at Ashland, was arrested today on charges by a 16-year-old girl, Virginia Barrett, that he had whipped her in the nude.

Father Rooney was arrested on a warrant signed before Justice of the Peace J. H. Armstrong in which the girl charged that he "cruelly tortured, tormented or punished her by whipping her in the nude with a heavy leather strap while she was tied with a rope to a post and gagged with a towel."

Prosecutor A. Ross Siverling of Ashland county said that the girl told him in questioning that she had been working at the parish house and that the priest had beat her at 4:30 a. m. on March 7.

Father Rooney and his attorney, Robert Lett of Ashland, appeared before Justice of the Peace Armstrong and was released on $200 bond. He also asked Prosecutor Siverling for a hearing to be held this afternoon. Siverling was reportedly arranging for the conference and said that he would call the grand jury this week to consider the girl's charge.

LaGuardia Plans Talks as City Bus Strike Continues.

NEW YORK—(INS)—As Manhattan's transportation-paralyzing bus strike moved into its third day, Mayor F. H. La Guardia today planned to confer with Alan Haywood, CIO regional director, in an attempt to break the deadlock that has tied up 1,300 buses and affected 1,000,000 commuters.

The strike involves 3,500 members of the CIO Transport Workers union whose demands include an average 25 per cent wage increase.

It was called last Monday when union leaders failed to reach an agreement with operators of 95 per cent of Manhattan's surface transportation.

DAVEY OUT?

Ex-Governor Says He 'Might' Retire From Politics.

KENT —(INS)— Martin L. Davey, former Ohio governor, today indicated he might retire from the state's political picture. At home, following a month's treatment for coronary thrombosis at the Cleveland clinic, Davey, who also suffered a heart attack, hesitated to give a definite answer as to his future activities in Democratic circles, but said that "probably nature has given an answer to that."

Furthermore, he declared it good political strategy to keep people guessing.

The 56-year-old former titular head of Ohio Democrats said it would be another month before he would be up and around and then expected to turn his immediate attention to his tree surgery business.

Murray Asks New Contract From 14 'Big Steel' Firms

NEW YORK—(INS)—Philip Murray, CIO president and chairman of the Steel Workers organizing committee, today served notice on the managements of fourteen "Big Steel" subsidiary companies that his organization desires to open negotiations for a new contract affecting 261 000 employes.

This move was significant, in view of the action yesterday of John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, in demanding a wage increase for 450,000 soft-coal miners.

The miners' contract with the coal producers expires at midnight March 31 at a time when Murray's negotiations with U. S. Steel corporation are expected to reach a climax.

Steel and coal are regarded as the two most important basic industries bearing on national defense.

POLICE HUNT 'BOMB RING'

Turks Probe Attempt To Kill British Official as Four Die In Explosion.

BULLETIN

ISTANBUL—(INS)—The bomb which exploded in the Pera Palace hotel was placed among the bagagge of British Minister George Rendel before he left Sofia, it was officially announced today. Investigation has absolved Turkish citizens of all responsibility in connection with the blast.

(By Associated Press)

ISTANBUL, Turkey — Turkish police and military authorities declared today they were searching for a "Balkan bomb ring" they believed behind an attempt to assassinate George W. Rendel, British minister who left German-occupied Bulgaria.

Four persons were killed and upwards of 20 injured last night, but Rendel escaped by a narrow margin when a bomb wrecked the lobby of the luxurious Pera Plaza hotel, where the British diplomat had brought his party from Sofia by train only a few minutes before.

Investigators who indicated they foresaw possible "serious diplomatic repercussions" from the bombing examined passengers on all trains, searched baggage compartments and closely questioned all persons wishing to leave Bulgaria.

The dead were:

Miss Gertrude Ellis, formerly stenographer at the Sofia legation.

An unidentified woman.

Two Turkish detectives.

Survivors declared they believed the bomb had been placed aboard Rendel's train in Sofia—perhaps timed to explode in Turkey.

NAZIS BLAME BRITISH

BERLIN—(AP)—German sources said today that the British themselves may have been responsible for the bomb explosion in the Pera Palace hotel at Istanbul yesterday.

Recalling German allegations that British secret service agents had tried to blast the water supply at Sofia, Bulgaria, authorized sources said, "it is possible that some of the same explosive supply was taken into the Pera Palace hotel in Istanbul and was badly timed."

The house highway committee recommended for passage a bill by Rep. Guess (R-Carroll) to authorize the state highway department, county commissioners and city officials to make preliminary plans for limited access highways and to acquire right-of-ways.

No specific routes were mentioned in the bill and no actual construction is authorized, but the measure is regarded as preliminary to the adoption of plans for one or more freeways patterned after the Pennsylvania turnpike from Harrisburg to Pittsburgh.

U. S. Can Bank on Labor's Aid In Crisis, Golden Declares

"America made a poor showing as the arsenal for democracy last time, but labor is determined that there shall be no repeat performance of the 1917 record this time," Clinton S. Golden, member of the National Labor Advisory commission, said in an address here last night

He spoke before nearly 250 persons at a lecture in John Simpson auditorium It was sponsored by the educational committee of Del-ano Lodge, No 159, Amalgamated Association of Iron Steel and Tin Workers His subject was "Labor and National Defense."

"When the conflict that was to become World War I started in Europe," said Golden, "there were less than two million organized wage earners in the United States. It was generally assumed that aside from shooting guns labor had no more to contribute than the brawn to handle machines that made them."

Labor was accorded representation on governmental boards and agencies according to Golden only with the idea of maintaining manpower Executives were entrusted with the task of producing war munitions and labor was simply to do as told and be silent' said the speaker.

Golden told his audience that this system worked disastrously

Flood Control Waters Rise Around Home Of Aged Woman Who Receives Only $1.97

She's Lonely Victim of Muskingum Project After 40 Years.

ST. CLAIRSVILLE (INS)— A 76-year-old woman sat before the stone fireplace of her homestead at Searsville, today, gazing through tear-blinded eyes at a government check for $1.97 that represents all that is left to her of 40 years of lonesome life in the midst of one of Ohio's most fertile valleys.

Marooned on the homestead, surrounded by the mud and water of a government flood control dam Mrs. Emma Major pondered on the wisdom of the government that had sent her the check in settlement of damages.

For 40 years Mrs. Major a widow now has lived on the 97-acre farm in fertile Egypt Valley in western Belmont county. In her humble home she has seen four children grow to manhood and womanhood

Then came the dam at the mouth of the broad valley of the Piedmont, several miles away. Neighbors' farms were purchased by the Muskingum Watershed Conservancy district, and the neighbors moved away. But for some reason the Major homestead was not bought and only an easement was secured for which the government paid

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"The college knows nothing, as yet," I told Donald when he docilely had seated himself again in his chair. "Aunt Lillian put up what you youngsters would call a 'colossal bluff,' and Marion is supposto have rushed off because of her mother's sudden illness, without signing out, and remained because of a sprained ankle of her own. Now, will you sit quietly while I tell you the rest."

"Yes, please go on," he said.

He kept his promise while I told him as quickly as possible of Lillian's frantic telephone call to me telling of Marion's disappearance, of my promising to come to New York at once with Dicky, and then of Marion's telephone to me with her message to her mother not to worry, and her inquiry as to the whereabouts of Jack Bickett, my brother-cousin, and Katherine's husband. He kept silent, too, as I told him how Mrs. Ticer had contrived to let me know by loudly "shooing" the cat, "Melinda;" that Marion was at her telephone, but when I spoke of the man with Marion who had rushed her away to his waiting car and chauffeur when he saw Dicky's car tearing down the road, he sprang to his feet with a hoarse exclamation.

"So it's true, then," he said, "what she wrote me. I kept hoping beyond all reason that she was lying for some reason of her own. But this shows—"

"Exactly nothing," I said firmly, "if you're thinking that Marion was accompanying that man willingly."

"Did you see her?" he demanded with hope in his voice.

"If I had she would not be missing," I told him, "or I should be with her."

"I know that," he said with a wan smile at me, more pitiful than tears. "But who did see her? Uncle Dicky?"

"No, only the back of the car which held her. It was a powerful car, and the man sent it so furiously through the back twisted woods roads of the west end of Long Island that Uncle Dicky was afraid Marion would be killed if he should keep up the chase."

"Then who did see her? Mrs. Ticer?" He gave a short scornful little laugh.

"Yes, Mrs. Ticer," I said, rebukingly. "She is a very shrewd and quick-thinking woman. I would not have known where Marion was if it had not been for her ruse about the cat. And Uncle Dicky almost caught up with them at that. If he had rescued Marion, it would have been due to Mrs. Ticer."

"You say 'rescued'," he said, and I realized that for the present his was decidedly a "one-track" mind. "How do you know she wanted to be 'rescued'?"

"I do not know that," I told him bluntly. "She told me, with desperation in her voice, if ever I heard it, that she must stay away, but would let her mother know about things as soon as she could. She sounded to me as if she had resolved upon her course because of some compelling reason, or—one that seemed compelling to her.

"And I then made up my mind to one thing, after my father and I had talked with Mrs. Ticer—"

"What did she think?" he interrupted hoarsely.

"What we all think," I said steadily, "that there was no trace of romantic interest in the man betrayed by Marion's manner. But that she definitely seemed afraid of him. And oh! Ronald, you wouldn't have known her voice, it was so dull and lifeless."

"Then she hasn't found things the way she thought she'd find them," he said bitterly, and I leaned forward and spoke sternly:

"Ronald," I said, "in this time of Marion's peril, you ought to tell everything you know about this to those who are trying to rescue her."

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, March 13.

The planetary configurations bearing on the affairs of this day should promise sudden, surprising and radical influence on the present as well as the future life and its destinies. Matters seem to evolve as if from the "blue," precipitating change, opportunity, and drama in all departments of living, private, romantic, emotional, artistic and business. Definite change of plans and objectives, as environs and associations, may be forthcoming, with surprising success and happiness on the near horizon, but be alert to treachery and fraud.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of sudden change of an unforeseen and unpredictable nature. This may affect all angles of life, business, scientific, artistic and emotional, with successful and far reaching influence on things in general. It is a time for attacking major propositions and objectives with vigor, initiative and originality. But keep alert to fraud and snares.

A child born on this day should have originality, initiative and enterprise of a high and exceptional order, possibly to a degree of genius. It may have an adventurous, dramatic, and romantic life, with much success.

The striped barber's pole dates back to the time when barbers also were surgeons. It originally was provided for patients to grasp while a blood-letting was taking place.

Is your child a
NOSE PICKER?

It may be more than just a nasty habit! It may be a sign of worms. Yes, ugly, crawling roundworms inside your child! Other warning signs are fidgeting, "picky" appetite, crankiness, itching in certain parts.

Roundworms can cause real trouble! If you even suspect your child has them, get Jayne's Vermifuge right away! Jayne's is America's best known proprietary worm medicine. Scientifically tested and used by millions for over a century. It expels stubborn worms, yet acts very gently. If no worms are there, Jayne's acts merely as a mild laxative. "The Authority on Authorities"

USE YOUR OWN TRUMPS

Ordinarily you do not wish to waste trumps of the longer trump holding in ruffing, as you would like to use those of the shorter holding opposite. But there are times when the smaller trumps of the master hand figure to be worthless for any other purpose, since one opponent is marked as holding a string of somewhat higher trumps. In those cases, your only chance to take tricks with the little cards is by ruffing leads of other suits.

	♠ K 6 5 2 ♥ 7 4 3 ♦ 5 4 ♣ 9 6 4 2
♠ Q J 3 ♥ 9 6 2 ♦ Q 10 8 7 ♣ Q J 3	W. N. E. S.	♠ 10 9 8 7 ♥ Q J 10 8 ♦ 3 ♣ A K 10 8
	♠ A 4 ♥ A K 5 ♦ A K J 9 6 2 ♣ 7 5

(Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	Dbl	Pass	1 ♠
Pass	3 ♦	Dbl

Three club leads came in quick succession. South deciding to ruff the third. He counted up his tricks. Two in spades, two in hearts, two high ones in diamonds made six in sight. Three more were needed. One ruff of clubs and one of spades would make eight, and he ought to be able to get the ninth by making West lead trumps to him once at the end, thereby building his diamond J into a trick.

So after ruffing the third club, he cashed the spade A and K, ruffed a spade with the diamond 6, took his heart tops and led a their heart to East's J. This left both South and West with four trumps. East led his sole diamond, South played the 9 and West was locked right there. If he ducked this the two high trumps would make the winning tricks. He actually took it with the 10 and returned his 8 the J winning and the two trump tops completing the contract.

If South had not led that third heart, he could not have made the contract for West could have exited after getting in by leading a heart to South forcing the latter to ruff and end-playing him instead of West.

Tomorrow's Problem.

	♠ A Q 7 ♥ A K Q J ♦ Q J 10 9 8 7 ♣ None
♠ K J 10 9 ♥ 9 8 6 2 ♦ None ♣ K Q J 10 9	W. N. E. S.	♠ 8 6 5 4 3 2 ♥ None ♦ 6 5 4 3 2 ♣ 8 7
	♠ None ♥ 10 7 5 4 3 ♦ A K ♣ A 6 5 4 3 2

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

Can you find the way to make 7-Hearts by South on this deal if West leads the club K?

BIRTH RECORD REQUIREMENTS KEEP CITY BUSY

Health Board's Report Shows Certificates Issued Jump 180 Per Cent.

The requirement by industrial concerns in Mansfield and other parts of the country that an applicant for a position must present a record of birth has given added work to the Mansfield board of health, according to the board's annual report filed today.

The board in 1940 was called upon to supply 666 certified copies of birth, an increase of 180 per cent over 1939.

In addition to the routine office work, the board has had to make extensive searches for records in cases where the applicant had no certificate filed with the city, the report showed.

Mansfield continued to grow in population, showing an increase of 10.8 per cent since 1930 as compared with other cities of similar size in Ohio. This gain, however, is 50 per cent below the preceding decade. Population per square mile was listed at 6,089.

Although a record prevalence of whooping cough created a great problem through most of 1940, only one death resulted from it. The cost of medical indigent care was reduced to a new low for the past four years but an increase in requests for treatment in December indicated a higher load for 1942.

The city's death rate showed little gain over the preceding year with 482 deaths being recorded, six more than in 1939. The average death remained at 12.9 per cent, the same level for both years. Mortality figures reveal that 264 male and 218 female deaths occurred.

Heart disease continued to be the primary cause of death with cerebral conditions, cancer and nephritis holding the next three positions.

While a new high mortality rate for the past five years was reached with the death of 48 infants under one year of age, the mortality rate took a downward trend from five to three cases.

The year was listed as one of the lowest for resident mortality in connection with communicable diseases. Of the four deaths charged to these diseases, three were non-residents. Vaccination against smallpox was given to 135 individuals through the Richland County Medical Society's immunization plan.

Diphtheria claimed one non-resident death from two resident and two non-resident cases. Typhoid fever took two non-resident deaths in three non-resident cases and whooping cough took the fourth death, the only one in 414 cases.

Following whooping cough, scarlet fever had 118 cases reported, only four more than in 1939. No deaths were recorded although three fatalities occurred in the previous year.

Completion of the city's program for the elimination of roof drainage of storm water into the sanitary sewage systetm was urged in the report and the institution of another program to eliminate the drainage of sanitary sewage into the storm sewer system was suggested.

The report stated that the Department's supervisory capacity has not kept pace with the increase in the number of food-handling establishments in the city. Inspection of dairy farms functioned on a level with 1939 while inspection of milk plants increased 50 per cent.

Expenditures for the department totalled $29,382.14, while receipts from plumbing permits and certificates brought in $6,144.44.

CHIEF SEEKS TO HIKE POWER OF POLICE RADIO

Bates Files Request With Communication Commission In Increase Wattage.

An application to increase the power of Mansfield's police radio equipment from 50 to 250 watts was forwarded to the federal communications commission today by Police Chief Meade K. Bates.

Approval of the request would make Mansfield's police radio system the most powerful in north central Ohio, Bates said.

Chief reason for the request is to increase the station's efficiency in reaching isolated parts of Richland county and to contact neighboring cities.

With the present system, according to Chief Bates, it is sometimes difficult to maintain contact with sheriff's cars. The new power would permit the Mansfield police to blanket the county with their radio waves.

"At times, it is impossible to communicate with cars near Plymouth or in the southern part of the county," said Bates. "This will increase not only our contacts with neighboring cities but will also allow greater cooperation with the state police."

Mansfield has had its police radio station for six years. It was built by public subscription for approximately $650. Two years ago, another subscription of $700 paid for four mobile units with 12 watts power each. This gave the city two-way transmission allowing police cruisers to contact headquarters.

"As a key station for this district," Bates said, "Mansfield could improve the facilities of all municipal stations within its range. Direct communication with nearby cities and state patrols would consolidate police effort."

Work on the increase of power would start immediately after the application is approved by the federal commission, and would take about 30 days.

Council has appropriated $1,000 this year for equipment and maintenance of new equipment. No change would be necessary except in the transmittting unit itself. Receivers, microphones and other equipment would be used as at present.

Although it is believed that the work could be finished within 30 days, the application will call for a 30 to 90 day construction period.

THE RECORD .... Facts That Concern You — No. 24 of a Series

A few weeds grow in every garden

Among the thousands of decent law-abiding beer retail establishments in America there may be a few disreputable "joints."

While it is the brewers' responsibility to brew good beer and the retailers' responsibility to sell beer under wholesome conditions, nevertheless the brewing industry is concerned about these undesirable places and wants them cleaned up.

We want them cleaned up because they endanger your right to enjoy good beer . . . and our right to make it.

We want them cleaned up because they endanger the 50,196 jobs and $46,441,543 payroll created by beer in Ohio since re-legalization. Beer contributed $10,717,714.00 last year in taxes in this state.

These benefits are worth preserving. You can help us, if you will, by (1) patronizing only the reputable, legal places that sell beer and by (2) reporting any law violations to the duly constituted law enforcement authorities.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—It's all in the point of view.

There's the pretty young secretary who went east, after four years in the bedlam of a movie studio, to take a job in an aircraft production plant.

ROBBIN COONS

Within a month she returned, with relief, to her old familiar haunts.

"You know," she remarked happily, "that's such a crazy business I could never get used to it!"

"You'll like "Scattergood Baines," at long last in the movies. Clarence Budington Kelland's old reliable fiction character is happily realized in Guy Kibbee—with a wig that makes him look more like Scattergood than like Kibbee.

Kibbee, long ogling "Scattergood" for himself, was Kelland's choice, too. The author sold screen rights to 107 of the stories for $100.000 — and the producers acquired 940 radio scripts on the character besides, insuring a series.

The first film establishes Scattergood in Cold River, shows his rise to prosperity as the village sage, his skinning of the skinflints who would do him and his neighbors out of their livelihoods. Homespun, chuckly stuff with young romance and Francis Trout, who is Scattergood's railroad pal. Pliny Pickett, to the last fussbudgety gesture.

Kathryn Grayson ("Andy Hardy's Private Secretary") accomplished a remarkable feat in "aging" five years between production and preview. Billed originally as 14 years old, she was acknowledged to be 19 as the plaudits rolled in. Fourteen or 19, little Miss Grayson has the looks, pert appeal and spirit—to say nothing of her exceptional singing voice—to take her place with the top younger talents. She's from St. Louis, via Winston-Salem, N. C., where she was known as Zelma Hedrick.

Freddie Bartholomew, growing by the minute, is in "Naval Academy"—on the same lot where his contemporaries, Jane Withers and Jackie Cooper, are "growing up" in "Her First Beau." . . . It's Jane's first loan-out—to Columbia. . . . Funny to think of it, but Jane is the second "oldest" in point of service at 20th, having been there since October, 1934. Only Alice Faye, who signed in May of that year, tops her seniority.

READY TO AID TROOP MOVES ON HIGHWAYS

States Talk Over Plans For Meeting Traffic Problems When Armies Use Roads.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — States of the fifth corps area stand ready to assist the army in traffic problems to expedite large-scale troop movements by highway.

State officials, conferring with a war department representative here yesterday, agreed that the first step in a plan to avoid traffic delays must be the establishment of full cooperation between the state and federal governments in the exchange of pertinent information.

The war department would be expected to notify state highway departments of extensive troop transfers, and the state officials, in turn, would advise as to the condition of roads, suggest routes, and provide monitors to direct the army traffic with the least possible disruption of civilian traffic.

Under the proposal outlined by L. S. Harris, war department representative and discussed by advisory committees from Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky, the highway patrol would control traffic during troop movements.

Ohioans at the meeting said it was agreed that troops had no legal right to exclude civilian traffic from the highways except in time of declared emergency, and the patrol would be given the right to determine whether troop trucks should move in a mass or spaced formation.

West Virginia, fourth state in the fifth corps area, was not represented at the meeting.

ESTIMATE 'PREMATURE'

COLUMBUS—(AP)—State Highway Director Hal G. Sours today described as "premature" a Washington statement of Rep. George H. Bender (R., Ohio) that $43,550,000 would be necessary to bring Ohio's highway system up to standards of national defense authorities.

"The figures I furnished Mr. Bender actually represented a long range program and as such I expected them to be treated in confidence," Sours asserted. "We have no hope of getting all that money for Ohio. That sum is not needed immediately."

2ND SHIPMENT

War Relief Society Ready To Send More Knitted Goods.

The Mansfield British War Relief chapter was making plans today to forward its second shipment of knitted garments to New York headquarters, for transshipment to Great Britain.

To date, 68 pounds of knitted garments have been shipped, all knitted by Mansfield workers. Those who have completed garments since the last shipment were asked today by Miss Margaret McLean, knitting chairman, to bring them to the chapter's headquarters, Farmers Bank building, not later than Saturday, so they can be included in the second shipment.

An additional 50 pounds of wool was received at headquarters today, making a total of 228 pounds sent to Mansfield since the chapter was organized.

A meeting of the general committee is scheduled for 7:30 p. m. Thursday at the C. of C. rooms. Louis J. Ott, chairman will preside.

TALKS ON 3RD PARTY MOVES

Ohio Northern Speaker Tells Rotarians Social Progress Originates There.

"Watch the less radical of third-party proposals to get an idea of the next steps in social progress," advised Prof. W. E. Binkley, instructor in history at Ohio Northern university, Ada, in an address at last night's intercity Rotary club meeting, held at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

"Political parties are largely combinations of interest groups," Prof. Binkley said, "and the value of a third party is to promote ideas which major parties are afraid to endorse but which they later adopt and put into effect. Progressive movements start in third parties and mature in major parties.

"Only by experience can men gain wisdom, and history is a record of the experiences of nations and of the human race. Study of history is valuable in providing a basis on which to anticipate and prepare for the future. Crises come at intervals and it is in the normal periods between crises that mankind engages in building a finer life.'

Social progress through 50-year periods starting in 1790 was cited by the speaker in forecasting the probable trends of further advancement during the next half century.

Ashland and Loudonville Rotary clubs joined with Mansfield in last night's meeting, at which Harry D. Poulston, of Lima, governor of the 157th district of Rotary International, was the bonus guest. Several members of the Willard club also attended.

Harold W. Arlin, zone chairman for the district conference, to be held in Sandusky May 14 and 15, presided as toastmaster and the district governor gave a preview of conference plans.

Dean Dickerson and Dr. W. E. Wygant were formally received as new members of the club, the induction address having been given by W. L. Miller.

Group singing was directed by LeMoine Derr and a male quartet of high school students sang several selections.

CIVIC MUSIC DRIVE FOLLOWS THOMAS CONCERT ON FRIDAY

With a concert by John Charles Thomas Friday night bringing the 1940-41 season of the Civic Music association to a close, some 150 workers are getting ready this week to launch the association's fifth annual membership campaign.

They will gather for a dinner meeting at Grace Episcopal church Monday night, at which time campaign details will be outlined. The drive is in charge of Mrs. Paul F. Cropper, general chairman, and six majors, Mrs. Thornton Moore, Mrs. E. D. Gibson, Mrs. George Hall, Mrs. D. O. Meese, and the Misses Hester Robinson and Florence MacDonald. Dr. A. D. Fonkalsrud is president of the association.

The campaign will last for a week, closing Saturday night, March 28. Campaign headquarters will be in the Ohio Fuel Gas company office. As for the past three years, Mrs. Mercedes Walker, representing Civic Music association's headquarters in New York, will assist in the campaign.

A total of 1,247 memberships are in effect this season, so many that the reciprocity feature, which permitted Mansfield members to attend concerts in other cities, and members in other cities to attend Mansfield concerts, had to be omitted.

Campaign officials were confident, they said, that the forthcoming campaign would produce as many and perhaps more memberships for 1941-42.

The Thomas concert, to be given Friday night at Senior high school, will highlight the 1940-41 season, and a capacity house is in prospect. Thomas, Metropolitan opera baritone, has been insistently sought by members of the association.

His program here Friday evening will be of a varied nature, and he will be assisted by Carroll Hollister, pianist.

The program will be presented in five parts. "Aria, Per me giunta," from the opera "Don Carlo" by Verdi will be presented by Thomas as one of the features of the program.

In a lighter vein are the compositions to be presented as the fourth and fifth groups. They include American folk songs and negro spirituals. In conclusion he will sing "As Ever I Saw" by Warlock, "O Men from the Fields" by Hughes, "Dialogue Between Tom Filuter and His Man" by Berners, "E'en as a Lovely Flower" by Bridge, "Shallow Brown" and "The Old Soldier" by Hutchison.

GETS HONORS

Richland Red Cross Receives Membership Certificate.

For the sixth consecutive year the Richland county Red Cross has received an honor certificate from national headquarters, in recognition of service, especially for obtaining its quota of members for the 1940-41 year.

The quota for the 24th annual Roll Call was set at 10,000, but the local chapter had 13,086 members enrolled.

Although the state rating has not yet been established, the Richland chapter has been the highest per capita in the state for the past six years.

ATTEND BANQUET

Mansfield Pennsylvania Rail Workers to Go to Pittsburgh.

Several Mansfield employes of the Pennsylvania railroad will be among the 500 expected at the annual banquet of the road's Transportation club Saturday at the William Penn hotel in Pittsburgh.

James Garfield Stewart, mayor of Cincinnati, will be the principal speaker.

Laff-a-Day

"Darling, wake me up at 7:30."

Mansfield police are beginning to believe that some of the city's cars have ghost drivers. Monday night, a car owned by Tony Colace ran down Mulberry street without a driver and crashed into the rear of a parked auto. Last night, another car duplicated the feat at First and Diamond street but no damage resulted. The car broke loose from its parking place shortly after midnight.

If a pheasant shows up in Central park or anywhere in the downtown area it probably will be the one that escaped from County Dog Warden William Miller while he was helping out the county game conservation league. Miller had two of the birds in his car near the county jail before taking them to the country to release them. When he took one out to show it to an admiring group, it got away and flew in the general direction of Central park with Miller in pursuit. He lost the trail, however, and gave up the chase. He is hoping now that the bird doesn't become confused in the maze of traffic and get run over.

An ambitious youth today tried to convince W. G. Cox, U. S. Navy recruiting officer that he was 17 years old. But he had no birth certificate. Cox was willing to accept the word of the family Bible, but with the reservation that the book contained no erasures. The Bible was sent to Cox who promptly noted that the birth year, 1923, had undergone a minor change. But the punch line to the story came when Cox also noted that the birthday of a younger brother, immediately preceding the applicants name in the Bible remained unchanged. And the figures indicated that only four months could have separated the births of the two boys. He didn't get in the navy.

Ralph A. Schad, former Mansfield police chief, was impressed with the efficiency of Mansfield's traffic patrol this morning. While in the police department, reporting that a parking meter on North Park street was out of order, Schad received a tag for illegally parking on South Walnut street. Police told him that the meter only needed a light tap and that he had parked on the wrong side of the Walnut street meter while in the City hall.

SUFFERS STROKE

Mansfielder Stricken While Driving Automobile.

Willard Jackson, 53, Mansfield, an inspector with the Division of Dairy and Food Inspection in the State Department of Agriculture, escaped serious injury late yesterday when his car crashed into a ditch between Bellevue and Monroeville after he suffered a paralytic stroke.

Jackson lost control of his car after he was stricken but was not injured in the crash. He was taken to the Memorial hospital in Norwalk where his condition was reported as "fair" today.

Dr. J. H. Hindley of Monroeville was summoned to the scene of the accident and directed Jackson's removal to the Norwalk hospital. His condition at first was reported as critical.

VOTE EXPECTED AS GOVERNOR QUELLS REVOLT

Republicans Line Up To Ballot Thursday on $12,000,000 For Subdivisions.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — The Republican steam-roller in the legislature today was ready to flatten minority opposition to Governor Bricker's stand on sales tax appropriations after the governor himself had taken a hand in quelling a threatened revolt in the senate.

With harmony restored in the senate's Republican ranks, Frank E. Whittemore (R., Akron), senate majority leader, said the administration's bill, appropriating $12,000,000 from sales tax revenues to Ohio subdivisions, probably would come up for a vote tomorrow.

Turning a deaf ear to the demand of the cities for a greater share of the revenues, the governor has stood firm against minority demands for an increase to $16,000,000 of $17,000,000. The bill was recommended for passage by the senate finance committee last week, but had been held up after it appeared that two or more Republican senators might vote for an increased appropriation.

Yesterday, after the Democrats had put forth a compromise proposal that appeared to have a fair chance of passage, the governor met with Whittemore and all 19 Republican senators and ironed out differences. The result, the majority leader announced, was that the administration will stand pat on the $12,000,000 figure, the same amount given the cities in both 1939 and 1940.

Democrats, citing increased sales tax revenues of $500,000 in the first seven weeks of this year as justification for their demands, had proposed a compromise under which the $12,000,000 figure would stand in the bill, but in addition the subdivisions would receive half of all money collected above $51,500,000 this year, and half of collections from the liquid fuel tax above $14,500,000.

When it was learned that the Republican senators had been counselled by the governor to reject this, senate Democrats announced that a series of amendments will be offered when the bill comes up for a vote. The first will provide for a $17,000,000 appropriation. If this fails, succeeding amendments will be submitted, scaling the figure down a million dollars at a time in the hope that one or more Republicans will desert the administration ranks.

The Republicans have a bare majority in the senate, with 19 votes against the Democrats' 17. It was understood that the bill will not be permitted to come up for a vote tomorrow unless the full GOP membership is present.

The bill has already been passed by the house.

Mansfielder at O. S. U. Chosen as Champion Liar

The dubious honor of being one of the nation's greatest liars has fallen to Edward Maxwell of Mansfield, a freshman at Ohio State university.

For one of his taller than "tall" stories, Maxwell was named a member of the National Burlington, Vt., Liars club in the second annual contest for representative student liars held recently on the campus.

Maxwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Maxwell of 26 Florence avenue, won his laurels with a story of how the lightbeams from his car lights froze solid on Christmas eve.

The setting for his story was the thriving little community of Applebutter Creek where, despite a temperature of 20 degrees below zero, little children walked about the streets in their bare feet. It was so cold that boiling water froze as it poured from a bucket, suspending the bucket in mid-air.

Maxwell topped his prize-winning story by telling how he shattered the frozen light beams with vibrations from his voice.

FACES TRIAL ON GAMBLING COUNT

Tavern Proprietor Second to Go Before Jury In Drive.

CHARDON—(U.P.)—H. J. (Buck) Walters, proprietor of the Rainbow tavern at Burton, was scheduled to go on trial in Geauga common pleas court today as the second case in an anti-gambling drive in the county. He is charged with exhibiting gambling devices.

Harry Linden, of the Junction tavern at the intersection of routes No. 44 and 322 was convicted of the same charge by a jury yesterday.

Forty store operators and business men were indicted by a grand jury last week in the gambling cleanup campaign.

Two Teams Remain In Running for City League Title

Sport Podge by Rex Hess

BOOM! BOOM! BOOM! Beat the drums for those Mansfield high Tygers. The jungle cats are on the prowl.

Continuing in their late season stride, the improved Tygers toppled Tiffin Columbian's favored hoopsters at the Sandusky tournament last Saturday night, and they return Friday to tangle with the Little Giants of Fremont Ross.

And the tournament truism, "Anything can happen," was never truer than for this bucketball soiree of the Cats and the Midget Supermen.

Says Coach Vern Hoffman of the Tygers:

"Fremont has been a hot and cold team. The Giants are hotter than hot when they're hot, and just another ball club when they're cold. But if they're hot come Friday night, they'll be just as tough a team as the Tiffin bunch we bumped last week.

"Tiffin had good organization, took its time, and made its shots count. Fremont will fire away, and if the Giants are hot, I fear there's not a whole lot we can do about it.

So until the temperature of the Fremonts is taken Friday night, Mansfield fans may do well to heed Bobby Burns' plaint:

"The best laid plans of mice and men oft lay an egg." (I couldn't spell: "Gang aft agley.")

Hoffman says he is letting his hoopsters take it easy this week, but you'd never know it to watch him put them through their practice paces.

This guy doesn't take anything easy on that basketball floor. His booming voice and command of Brooklynese keeps the Tygers on their toes throughout their drills.

The only "easy" thing I could see about their practice sessions this week was the fact that he let 'em off a little bit early. After Hoffman runs 'em around, the Tygers probably find that early knock-off easy to take.

Hoffman, incidentally, has been a worried man for the past few days, worried about more important things than district tournaments and Tyger chances.

He was watching Friday night's games at the Sandusky joust when a telephone call informed him his young daughter needed an emergency appendectomy immediately.

Since then most of his time away from basketball practice has been spent with Mrs. Hoffman in their daughter's hospital room. The child, on latest reports, was recovering nicely.

Lest the Tygers feel the urge this week, and I really don't believe they will, to do some self back-patting on the strength of their tourney success thus far, I might pass along a bit of a ditty that's long been popular in the Hess family when that back-patting mood strikes one of us. Instead of "Give yourself a pat on the back," it's:

* * *

Give yourself a sock on the snoot.
A sock on the snoot, a sock on the snoot.
Say to yourself, "You terrible brute.
"Why don't you go away?"

Akron Quints Bumped

Left Without Team In State Cage Tourney.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Akron, hotbed of high school basketball and producer of three state champions in the last 10 years, will have no representative in the 1941 state Class A meet in Columbus.

The Rubber City's last hopes, Akron Buchtel and Akron Garfield, were eliminated last night in the Northeastern District Class A meet at Akron.

It marks the first time in 13 years and the fifth time since the state tournament was held in Columbus that an Akron team has failed to reach the state meet.

Akron North won the state Class A crown in 1939 and 1935. Akron West was the first Akron team to capture the state crown in 1932. Akron had its best years in 1938 and 1939 when three of its teams each year made the trip to Columbus.

Akron Buchtel was eliminated last night by Barberton, 36 to 20, and Canton McKinley ousted Akron Garfield, 57 to 27. Akron North, Akron Kenmore and Akron South were eliminated from the tourney Monday night.

In the other game played last night, Springfield township ran its winning streak to 19 with a 39 to 18 victory over Wadsworth.

The three games at Akron were the only contests on last night's tournament schedule. The three Class A representatives from the Northeaestern district will be decided tonight. Massillon, a defending champion, meets a dangerous Canton Timken team, Elyria battles Springfield township and Barberton faces Canton McKinley, runnerup for the state title last year.

While Akron Garfield proved easy for Canton McKinley, Akron Buchtel did not give up without a fight against Barberton. Buchtel trailed during the first half but tied the score near the close of the third period. Barberton retaliated with a strong fourth quarter drive that clinched the game.

Casius Sisler, Barberton center, scored 12 points in his team's victory.

The rangy Springfield township quintet which has three players over six feet, turned on the pressure in the second half to swamp Wadsworth. Center Harold Fix counted 16 points for Springfield township.

Akron Buchtel brings the number of Class A finalists eliminated to eight. The others are Columbus Central, New Philadelphia, Akron South, Canton Lehman, Findlay, Bellevue and Cincinnati Woodward.

BAPTISTS TROUNCE CONGREGATIONALISTS

Baptist cagers trounced the Congregational quintet 43 to 12. St. Paul's defeated the Presbyterian five 33 to 24, and Lutheran basketballers took a victory from the St. John's quint 24 to 17 in cage contests of the Senior Church league at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday.

High score honors were shared by Abele and Weber on the Baptist team, each making a total of 12.

Harder Tries Hurling Arm

Tests Salary Whip In Game With Cardinals.

FT. MYERS, Fla.—(AP)—The annual first test of Mel Harder's "hot-weather" arm is scheduled for St. Petersburg tomorrow when the Cleveland Indians battle the St. Louis Cardinals in an exhibition game.

The 31-year-old right hander, a veteran of 13 seasons with Cleveland, has gotten off to a late start for the past several years. In most cases his arm loosened up in the Florida games but tightened once the club was back in the comparatively cold northern cities.

* * *

Harder always manages to end the season with a fair record through frequent victories in the warm months. Last year he finished strong to post 12 decisions against 11 setbacks.

He probably will twirl three innings against the National league club, with Clint Brown and Joe Heving going the rest of the distance.

Harder and his teammates were enthusiastic after his batting-practice chore yesterday. Mel commented:

"It was the first time I have felt as if I really dared cut loose with everything I had. I didn't hold back a thing, and if my arm keeps feeling this way I know I won't have a thing to worry about."

Friendly House Hoopsters Dine

Intermediate white league cagers of Friendly House won their reward for a season of bucketball play with a dinner at the settlement building last night, and miniature gold basketballs for the championship Forresters.

* * *

Players receiving the title awards were: Jack Nagle, Gerald Miner, Phil Deibler, Ray Malaska, Joe Rief and Paul Schadek.

Paul Carbetta, Mansfield finalist in the Chicago Golden Gloves, and until two years ago a player in the intermediate league, was an honored guest of the hoopsters.

Members of Mrs. Irma Augustine's home ecomonics class made the dinner a success from beginning to end. After preparing and serving the meal, they cleared the tables, then danced with the athletes.

YANKS WALLOP BLUE SOX QUINT

Yanks cagers walked over the Blue Sox 44 to 10 and Indians trounced the Dodgers 32 to 1 in bucketball tilts of the Rangers Club league at the Friendly House.

Scott, Yanks cager, made a total of 28 to cop high score honors of the game.

Bart Haley once more led the Mansfield Tire league with 223-191-191—605. Service Store took team honors with 798-821-849—2,468.

The Pierces, Gladys and John, led the pin punishers in mixed doubles with 311-331-331—972, on his total of 542 and her mark of 430.

Hedges Takes Tourney Title

Defeats Bowman, 22-15, In Final Fracas.

Hedges hoopsters won the annual grade school tournament title last night, defeating Bowman in the finals, 22-15, while Prospect edged West Fifth 10-8 for the consolation honors at John Simpson gym.

Hedges gained a 6-3 lead in the first quarter, but the margin was cut to 10-8 at the half. A 10-4 splurge in the third heat boosted the Hedges lead to 20-12, but when Cline went out on personals early in the final stanza the champions were able to chalk up only two more points. But Bowman could make only three and the victory was safe.

Bob Bishop led the Hedges attack with five buckets for 10 points while Reynolds paced the Bowmans with eight points.

* * *

There were no scoring stars in the consolation tilt as three players set the pace with four points each.

Supply Meets Shelby

Tangle In Tournament Game Next Monday; Loop Has Thrills.

ONLY the Mansfield Athletic Supplies and Ohio Seamless Tube remain to battle it out for the second half championship of the City A basketball league as the result of last night's games which saw Blue Goose Sohioans and Yuncker Sports eliminated in exciting tilts at the high school gym.

Athletics maintained their undefeated second-half record with a narrow 26-24 edge over Blue Goose, and the Shelby quintet was forced into overtime to nudge Yuncker's out of the running 34-32.

* * *

Although the Athletics have defeated Seamless Tube once in this half, the tournament plan will be carried on to the finish, it was announced today, and they will play until one of the two teams has two defeats.

They are scheduled for a playoff game next Monday night at the high school, the tilt having been moved up from Tuesday night because of a school play on Tuesday.

Blue Goose tossed a real scare into the Athletics' camp when the Sohioans took a 7-4 lead in the first period, and still held an 11-10 margin at the half.

Athletics came back to capture the edge at 18-14. Blue Goose rallied with five buckets in the last period and again took the lead, but the Athletics tied the count and with only a few seconds to play Morgan dunked a one-hander to put the game on ice.

Lyons, Shelley and Morgan led the Athletic attack and Lewis starred on defense, while Stichler and Wilkins paced the Sohioans in both departments.

Yuncker's took a 10-8 lead over Seamless Tube in the first period, and held the two point margin through the next two heats as each team tallied six points in the second canto, and eight in the third.

Shelby tied the score in the fourth quarter on successive buckets by Fisher, and forged ahead on a toss by Gottfried. With only a few seconds to go Boyd knotted the count with a side-shot.

Boyd hooped a long heave early in the overtime session but Irey tied it up again on a short shot, and again, with seconds remaining, Gottfried sank a long shot from the center of the floor to decide the ball game.

* * *

Boyd and Brandon turned in a good game for Yuncker's, while the floor play of Gottfried and Fisher stood out for Shelby.

ACTIVE STOCKS CONTINUE DROP ON MART TODAY

Move Downward Slightly After Recent Rally; Production Reported at Peak.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Most actively-traded stocks lost fractions to around a point today in a further reaction from the recent rally.

Among shares down a shade were U. S. Steel, Western Union, Kennecott Copper, Chrysler, International Harvester, Glenn Martin and General Electric.

Leading commodities and bonds were mixed in narrow markets.

Mid-week business statistics indicated production still was running around the peaks of the wartime rise and many analysts assumed further expansion was in store.

Weekly electric power consumption figures were close to the 1941 high. Rail loadings last week, based on reports of individual roads, were estimated at about 730,000 cars against 756,670 the preceding week and 621,000 in the 1940 period.

BANK ON LABOR, GOLDEN SAYS

Labor Leader Claims Workers Won't Let U. S. Down In Time of Crisis.

and that practically none of the munitions made in the United States reached Europe before the Armistice.

"We spent millions of dollars for aircraft," said the labor leader, "but not a single American plane fought over France."

"Today," continued the speaker, "labor has too great a stake in the outcome. Labor has something real and vital to defend, and it intends not only to defend it but to nurture it so that it may grow and mature."

Golden listed the social legislation in the past eight years and "functional democracy" as the reasons for labor's deep interest in preserving this country's democracy. He stated that with the greater understanding of democracy, labor has begun to assume greater responsibility in production.

Credit for CIO President Philip Murray's plan for the organization of the entire steel industry into one great production unit was given to the union-management co-operation plan perfected here in Mansfield in 1938.

Golden said that the plan, which would be supervised by a council of representatives of the union and management with a government representative as chairman, would safeguard the interests of the whole industry and all the employes as well as the public and national defense interests.

He estimated that under the Murray plan, six million tons of steel a year additional output could be exepected. The plan, Golden said, would call for the spreading of steel orders throughout the industry, to large and small producers alike.

Golden, who is a director of the Northeastern region of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee, stated that his group and the CIO had prepared surveys of several defense industries to help set up national defense programs. He listed the Reuther plan for the use of auto factories to turn out aircraft, a housing plan incorporating the use of prefabricated houses, and a program for the organization of industry councils to function in every industry in much the same manner as in the proposed steel council plan, as concrete examples of the organizations efforts.

NAZI WARPLANES BEGIN BOMBING OF GREEK TOWNS

Showdown Seen in Balkans as Yugoslavia Weakens on German Demands.

palace windows and killing a lodge house policeman. The palace was first bombed last fall.

In overnight raids, RAF bombers attacked Germany's big Kiel naval base, the London air ministry announced, and blasted the docks at Bremerhaven. The Germans acknowledged damage to a "purely residential section" at Kiel with two killed, 13 injured.

Night-raiding Luftwaffe bombers subjected a city in northwest England to its heaviest sustained assault in months, driving at least 150 persons from their homes and burying others, killed and wounded, in the wreckage.

Six persons were killed in another raid in the English Midlands.

On the Albanian war front, the Greek high command reported the capture of 450 Italian prisoners as Greek troops counter-attacked after stemming an Italian assault "of great violence."

"The mountains are covered with hundreds of dead and wounded," an Athens spokesman said.

Yugoslav dispatches said the Greeks had gained in "recklessly successful" attacks in the Tepeleni and Lake Ochrid regions.

Premier Mussolini's high command said the Greeks attacked in the Viosa valley sector, around Tepeleni, "and were repulsed with heavy losses."

The Fascist high command also reported that Italian troops in Eritrea, West Africa, had captured a British position in the bitterly-disputed Cheren sector, "putting the garrison to flight."

Reports reaching New York said Generalissimo Franco of Spain had rejected flatly as "inconsistent with Spanish honor" a German demand that Spain give territorial facilities for the flight of Nazi planes to Italy's hard-pressed forces in Africa.

Britain looked to America for speedy aid in U. S. equipment to repel Germany's all-out drive.

The British naval command announced a British submarine had torpedoed and sank a heavily-laden Italian troop ship of 9,646 tons in the Mediterranean area. The exact location wasn't given.

Churchill Thanks U. S. for Lease-Lend

LONDON—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill formally thanked the United States today for passage of the British aid bill, which he termed a "new magna carta . . . an inspiring act of faith."

With a United States military mission in the gallery—he later received the Americans in a private room — Churchill solemnly read the following statement to the house of commons:

"The lease and lend bill, as the house is aware, became law yesterday when it received immediately the signature of the president (cheers).

"I am sure the house would wish me to express, on their behalf and on behalf of the nation, our deep and respectful appreciation of this monument of generous and far seeing statesmanship (loud cheers).

Report British Troops Landing at Piraeus

BELGRADE —(U.P.)— Diplomatic quarters reported today that British empire troops were landing at Piraeus, the port of Athens, and that transports were about to land empire troops at Salonika.

Attempts to confirm the reports were unavailing.

(British authorities at London refused comment.)

According to the reports, 40 transports were used to take British empire troops and equipment from Africa to Piraeus and the ships arrived yesterday.

Reports had been circulating here for some time that Great Britain had assembled at least 10 divisions, possibly as many as 180,000 men, for transportation to Greece.

FDR CALLS IN HIGH COMMAND

Maps Action as Congress Gets Request For 7 Billions To Aid Britain.

officers and defense officers who will testify on the appropriations request before the house appropriations committee starting tomorrow. Hull is slated to be the first witness.

Doughton, in announcing his plans to start tax hearings, said: "The time is approaching to begin work on a tax bill. We probably will make a start the last of this month.

"First we want to await the result of March 15 income tax collections to find out how the tax yield is running. It is likely that a conference between members of congress and the president, and treasury officials will be sought soon."

The $7,000,000,000 request brought challenges, however, from foes to the administration to meet the financial question squarely.

Rep. Woodruff (R., Mich.), a member of the committee, said:

"Unless Mr. Roosevelt intends to continue to borrow money with which to carry on his aid to Britain, possibly a real, genuine 'national defense' for this country will come to life and congress will be asked to vote a tax bill that will really pay a major part of the cost.

"If he does not do that one can think only that he is utterly indifferent to the mounting national debt and all the grief and tax burdens which that policy will provide for future generations."

Also critical of the huge appropriation which the chief executive will formally ask today, Senate Minority Leader McNary, who voted for the aid-democracies bill, declared that the amount is too excessive to be appropriated "in one full sweep."

"The money should be appropriated from time to time as there is need thereof in the best judgment of the executive and congress," McNary said.

Rep. Cannon (D., Mo.), acting chairman of the house appropriations committee, asserted, however, that congress has committed itself and that the funds will be approved overwhelmingly.

Meanwhile, Mr. Roosevelt plans to make a radio speech to the nation within a few days explaining legislation which become law yesterday. The chief executive made it plain that he expects to provide help for both Greece and China, as well as Britain.

Some members of congress said that a group of fast mosquito boats may be started for England Monday to aid in fighting the U-boat menace and regarded transfer of additional destroyers as inevitable. More airplanes and ammunition and weapons of many kinds also will be dispatched across the Atlantic.

SHE GETS ONLY $1.97 FOR FARM

Woman Left Neighborless and Lonely as Flood Control Waters Rise.

the widow damages of $1.97 for flooding and backing up the waters of the artificial lake caused by the dam.

The Major homestead is now useless, valueless and marooned four months of the year because adjacent roads are under 10 feet of water. Thousands of acres of Egypt Valley have been flooded, and the odor of decayed vegetation is strong over the countryside where the scent of corn and clover once prevailed.

Neighborless and lonely, Mrs. Major sat today in the chair where she had rocked her babies and hummed the folk-songs of the hills, thummed the yellow pages of her family Bible and read the lines that tell how Moses was ordered to deliver his people from another Egypt to "higher ground."

"I'd like to be delivered unto a land that flows with milk and honey," she said. "I don't know what to do. There is still a mortgage on the place for money borrowed long ago. No one would think of buying. If I can't get out, how would anybody get in?"

Mrs. Major wonders about the hundreds of thousands of dollars spent on the gigantic control project and on a full year's survey that was abandoned. "And I wonder," she said, "what the Conservancy district will do with that $4,000,000 they asked congress to appropriate last week. At $1.97 a farm, they could buy up the midwestern states."

She wiped her eyes on the edge of a spotlessly clean apron and set her old mantel clock ahead a few minutes. "It loses a little every day, but it's been a good clock to run day and night for 40 years."

The waters in Stillwater creek in Egypt Valley will run over the walls of the government lake for 40 years, too, Mrs. Major opines, "because they say it is progress to have flood control, and we mustn't hinder progress.

BLACK ESTATE WINS IN SUIT

State Supreme Court Upholds Immunity Section of Law; Assessment Blocked.

munity from examination and assessment covering the years 1926 through 1930.

The Richland county case grew out of a taxpayer's suit started nearly three years ago by Michael Hallabrin of Mansfield. In the fall of 1939 the Fifth district appeals court issued a mandamus to require County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe to examine the records of the Black estate and assess taxes if any were found due.

The investigation was started, but before the collection began attorneys for the estate obtained a stay of execution from the Supreme court to enjoin the auditor and county treasurer from carrying out the appeals court order.

The decision was interpreted as meaning that any property owner who can prove he complied with the personal property tax law for the year 1932 can obtain a certificate of immunity to prevent examination and assessment for years prior to that time.

Written into the state law in 1932, the immunity section was designed to encourage the full filing of returns without danger of penalty for previous failures to list all personal holdings.

JAIL PRIEST AS GIRL'S TORTURER

Ashland Clergyman Held as Girl, 16, Claims He Whipped Her While In Nude.

Rev. Rooney, in a statement following his release from jail, said the girl's story was an "unbelievable distortion of the truth."

His statement said:

"The story told by the girl is an unbelievable distortion of the truth.

"As one who has the responsibility of a guardian, I tried in every way possible to persuade the girl to live a good Christian life. My duty in that respect was the same as that of a parent, and for the good of the girl, I have tried to live up to that duty."

Rev. Rooney's attorney explained that the girl had been placed in Rev. Rooney's custody by an order from the Ashland county probate court.

Asked if Rev. Rooney denies he whipped the girl, Atty. Lett replied that in defending Rev. Rooney that he expects to disclose to the court that the girl was not subjected to any more severe punishment than what a parent would administer to a son or daughter.

The pastor's home is located on Cottage street in Ashland not far from the home of the girl's father and stepmother, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Murphy.

When the girl came home Christmas, she went to work part-time at Father Rooney's home. She stayed part-time also at her father's home and with friends.

Murphy assumed the name of a step-father after his father's death but his daughter retained her grandmother's name of Barrett.

No report was made of whether or not an examination was made of the girl's injuries. The delay in making the charges was attributed to her timidness.

Justice of the Peace Armstrong said that although in ordinary cases, the girl would have been unable to swear out a warrant, that this being a criminal case, it was legal procedure.

Priest Accused

Rev. William E. Rooney, above, pastor of St. Edward's Catholic church in Ashland, was accused by a 16-year-old Ashland girl today of whipping her while she was strapped nude to a post. Rev. Rooney called the girl's story "an unbelievable distortion of the truth."

Thinking In Terms of Billions

EXCEPT for those who are schooled to big figures, the SEVEN BILLION DOLLARS which President Roosevelt asks congress to appropriate for use in the British aid program has little meaning. Comparatively few persons are capable of translating such a sum into terms of its peacetime potentialities.

It should mean, however, that only the recognition of dire need would drive the responsible heads of American government to contemplate the expenditure of this tremendous amount of hard-earned money in an effort to bolster Britain's defense against the Axis powers.

In addition to this seven billion dollars there will be need for other billions for our own national defense and to carry on the ordinary functions of government.

When money is being discussed in terms of millions, or billions of dollars, it may seem a remote subject—yet it all simmers down to either direct or indirect effect on every individual and every family in the country . . . for everybody will be required by either taxation, contribution or sacrifice to bear some part of this increased burden of defense and aid-to-Britain costs.

It appears not unreasonable, therefore, that all American citizens join in urging the greatest possible economy in non-defense expenditures, federal, state and local, so that the total tax bill may be kept from mounting higher than can be paid without sacrificing essentials of life.

It seems difficult to explain, for instance, why such a time as this should be chosen to propose a program for Ohio which would place expenditures at the highest point in the state's history, as has been done by Governor Bricker.

Birthday Greetings To Girl Scouts

POSSIBLY you have not heard as much about the Girl Scouts as about the Boy Scouts, but the week starting today is being devoted to placing special emphasis on the former—as this marks the twenty-ninth birthday anniversary of the Girl Scouts of America.

After all, the keynote of both organizations is the training of young people for the duties and responsibilities of later life and each occupies an important place in national and community life.

Girl Scouts, of whom there are now 633,000 in the United States, evidence keen awareness of opportunities open to them and have shown willingness to serve in whatever capacity is required.

In the confusion of thought as to what constitutes "national defense" one clear point is that national preservation, as well as defense, begins with youth.

Dictators have seemed quickest to recognize the value of youth organizations, and infiltration of alien "isms" in this country has been largely associated with efforts to spread false doctrines in youth groups.

Teaching loyal Americanism is one of the cardinal principles of the Scout movement and it would seem a part of national wisdom to encourage and strengthen these organizations in every possible way.

Good work done in the past year by Mansfield Girl Scouts gives an idea of the field of opportunity that lies ahead. The experience in Great Britain, where the Scout movement has flourished, demonstrates that a nation in which a large body of young people who have been trained to think for themselves, and to accept the responsibilities as well as the privileges of citizenship, is a nation that can't be easily overthrown.

Many of the national defense plans are for young people more than eighteen years old. When girls from seven to eighteen ask: "What can we do to help?" the answer is easy: "You can join the Girl Scouts. They find plenty for you to do and you'll have fun doing it."

Happy birthday, Girl Scouts! America needs more of you.

Former Governor Improving

EVERYONE is glad to learn that former Governor Martin L. Davey is sufficiently recovered from a recent serious heart ailment to return from the Cleveland Clinic to his home in Kent.

Whether or not Mr. Davey can adjust himself to the quiet prescribed by his physicians, after the strenuous political activities in which he has been accustomed to engage, remains to be seen. It would appear, however, that recognition of a dangerous heart condition, and consideration for his health, might influence the former governor to relinquish further political aspirations and their inescapable disappointments.

As head of the Davey Tree Expert company, Mr. Davey is in position to render valuable public service and as a former congressman and governor he has been accorded honors with which he should be well satisfied.

Mr. Davey's personal friendships extend far beyond the range of his political supporters and it is their hope that he will be privileged to enjoy many more years of happiness in private pursuits, free from the turmoil, bitterness and physical strain of office-seeking.

No Chewing Gum Shortage

ONE GREAT sacrifice has not yet been required of the American people. They are not only not deprived of their chewing gum, but they are getting it in ever larger quantities. The American Chicle company, which supplies most of the world's gum-chewers, says its business outside the Western Hemisphere is below last year's level. Yet it has been doing as well as ever and expects business in the current quarter to be better than in the same period of 1939. Chewers in the U. S. A. enable it to hold up that record.

There are those who maintain that the steady motion of the jaws of chewers relieves nervous tension, aids digestion and is therefore a wholesome practice.

Americans are people who make a million laws to do things and a million more laws to keep things from getting done.

It is reported that stocks "lack a trend"—which seems to be the trouble with the world in general.

TIME BOMBS NOT CONFINED TO EUROPE

Axis Shows Signs of Rough Going

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

BERLIN and Rome, as our state department interprets the news from these two supposedly strictly censored sources, are furnishing the most convincing of all proofs that things are going badly with the European Axis.

From Berlin recently came the information that Herr Hitler has remorselessly squelched disorders in Holland.—Oh, he doubtless has squelched 'em, but his announcement that he's done so is taken as an admission from a first-class authority that there were Dutch disorders that required squelching. And it was as good an authority as Signor Mussolini, who testified that the Fascists were a lot worse licked in northern Africa than even the British said they were.

Adolf and Benito ought to know, if anybody.

Benito's revelation was naive to the point of being funny. It evidently had leaked out in Italy itself that Il Duce's forces were on the run on the southern side of the Mediterranean, and it appears that the Italians, at home, were beginning to mutter that he'd neglected to send enough of 'em into that field of activity or to keep 'em supplied adequately.

Seemingly Benito was stung by these criticisms; so he made that speech of a few days ago, to the effect that his African military outfit was, too, a great plenty more numerous and better equipped than Italy and the rest of the world had given it credit for being. Well, if it was undermanned and skimpily armed it had some excuse for being licked. But, if not, as he asserted, it hadn't even that excuse for taking its licking.

Ditto Albania. Benito hotly denied that the Italians there were knocked into a cocked hat by the Greeks due to any failure of his own to send enough of 'em across the Adriatic or to furnish 'em with sufficient guns, munitions and aviation; they simply have been trounced by superior Greek fighting ability — though Benito didn't put it quite that way.

Not His Fault.

The nub of it is that, yes, they've been licked, but it wasn't his fault.

The inference drawn from Adolf's reports is that he's conquered more territory than he's going to be able to keep long under subjection.

The Dutch already are so ugly, according to his own account, that he has had to declare German army rule throughout all the northern Netherlands. Presumably it's effective there at present, but it must be a nuisance to him to have so much hostility sizzling that he has to sit on it with a big military force to prevent it from going on the rampage under him.

And of course there are other areas for him to worry about.

Norway's reported to be as near to an anti-Nazi uprising as it dares to be.

France certainly won't stay beaten any longer than it has to.

It stands to reason that Denmark, Poland and Belgium can't but be ripe for revolt at the first favorable opportunity. The Balkans also are only as pro-German as they're afraid to be otherwise.

Now, Herr Hitler can concentrate on one little spot, like northern Holland, and suppress its anti-Nazi-ism, unquestionably.

But suppose Adolf were to have uprisings break out against him in France, Holland, Belgium, Poland, Denmark and Norway about simultaneously, plus Britain on his hands, maybe the Balkans and Turkey, too, and with Russia's unreliability to reckon with! Wouldn't all that keep him pretty busy?

Italy's a broken reed to him. And Japan's too far away to help him in Europe.

Just how solidly Germany itself is behind the fuehrer is also something of a problem here.

Listen World!

Standard of Living

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I DO NOT BELIEVE in the American Standard of Living. I do not believe in uniform and universal luxury and license. I do not believe that any of us . . . old or young, rich or poor . . . is entitled to The Trimmings until we have earned them and proven we know how to use them.

To the contrary, I believe that this notion we should all live soft, safe lives with protected pay rolls is the most pernicious doctrine that ever penetrated this United States, and is responsible for nine-tenths of our laziness, graft, degeneracy, disloyalty and crime.

I am strong for any individual who is fighting for a square deal in his business or personal life. I believe we should all have a chance to make the most of ourselves—a chance to live the most abundant life possible, within our own natural tastes and talents. And I do not believe anything or anybody should be allowed to stand in our way. That was the idea of our honest, hard-working forefathers. That was the theory on which this democratic nation was built.

But that is not the theory on which our present "American standard of living" is built. Under our present standard (whatever its idealistic conception) we are all supposed to sit pretty, regardless of our individual efforts or qualifications. We all feel that we have a right to possess the same privileges . . . the same streamlined gadgets . . . whether we've earned them or not.

"KEEPING UP WITH THE JONESES" IS NO LONGER A TRICK PHRASE; IT IS A NATIONAL PHILOSOPHY. IF WE WERE REALLY HONEST, WE WOULD PRINT IT ON OUR SILVER DOLLARS INSTEAD OF "IN GOD WE TRUST."

This attitude is bad for all of us. It is most ruinous of all to American Youth. Youngsters of fourteen are now demanding the privileges and perquisites which their parents did not attain until they were in their forties. Fifteen-year-old Jimmy who has never earned a dollar in his life, won't think of taking his girl to a dance unless he can use a car. And Jimmy's girl is outraged if she has to wear a "formal" three times running.

Sixteen-year-old Al clamors bitterly for a car . . . thinks his parents are "old-fashioned dopes" if they won't let him have one. Then, having left school, both Jimmy and Al loaf around together in an orgy of self-pity because they "can't find jobs" calling themselves "The Lost Generation," although they daily pass up chores which their dads would have welcomed at their age.

Why are Dead End kids? That's way. Not because they were born vicious or deficient, but because we, their elders, have poisoned and perverted them with vicious ideas of snobbery and selfishness.

All of which is the direct and wicked result of our false "Standard of Living." We think we're entitled to things we do not need . . . to favors we do not earn . . . simply because we've been born Americans. Yet out of all this abundance, we get less contentment and inspiration than the poorest peon or coolie.

Well there's one thing we'll all get gratis, if we keep this nonsense up much longer—and that is a shellackin'! "Pride goeth before a fall," and Providence generally provideth the banana peel for those who are ripe for a skid!

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Salonika, Key to Victory In 1918, Strategic City 2,000 Years Ago

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—If you travel from Paris down the route of the Simplon-Orient Express through Milan, Trieste, Belgrade and Nisch, each city will seem dirtier, more tawdry and more Oriental until finally, in Salonika, you think you have come to the jumping-off place of Europe.

But if, on the other hand, you approach Europe from the Mediterranean, via Gibraltar, Algiers, Malta and Patras, as one of the Merry-Go-Rounders once did, then Salonika—despite its dusty quays, its narrow twisting streets, its towering mosques—will gleam forth like a Mecca of modern civilization.

No matter what the approach, Salonika was one of the most strategic cities of southeast Europe long before Hitler massed his mechanized forces near its borders.

Named Thessalonica for the sister of Alexander the Great, the city lay on the main road between Rome and the East, at the head of the long arm of the Gulf of Salonika. Alexander himself traveled over that road from Macedonia en route to Persia.

The Slavs swept down from Serbia in an attempt to capture it in the 7th century; then the Bulgars in the 9th century. The Saracens took it in 904, followed by the Normans of Sicily in the 12th century, the Greeks in the 13th century, then the Venetians. Finally Murad II, Sultan of Turkey, captured the prized city of the Aegean in 1430 and it remained under Turkish rule for five centuries.

It was not until the Balkan wars against Turkey in 1912 that the Greeks finally won Salonika for their own again.

Allied Base In 1918.

WHEN one of the Merry-Go Rounders lived in Salonika, at the close of the last war, it was one of the most glamorous cities of the Near East and still the pawn of foreign armies. A quarter of a million French, British, Italian, Russian and Serbian troops had been landed as its dusty quays and carried up the jerky, wheezing Greek railways to the Monastir and Strumica fronts.

Millions of dollars worth of military supplies lay strewn about her harbor. Extending ten miles westward lay the great British ammunition dumps — artillery, field kitchens, hospital units, oil tanks, surplus locomotives; wagon wheels, stacks and stacks of wagon wheels; miles of railroad cars, acres of motor lorries; tractors, piles of sheet iron; mounds of earth with warning signs; "Dynamite" — all the supplies, the debris, the necessary waste of a modern army.

And now those same supplies are being dumped in Salonika again to feed another army making a stand against the same Germans and Bulgars in Macedonia.

War Boom Town.

IT WAS the Salonika campaign in September of 1918 which finally won the last war. But it took the Allies three years of fighting to realize that Salonika could be the key to victory.

The Salonika front was established after the Serbian retreat in 1915. It was established and then left to itself and to the political maneuvering of General Sarrail, who could get along neither with the British, the Italians nor the Serbs.

So for nearly three years Salonika waited, waited and prospered. Greek merchants waxed fat and rolled in drachmas. Girls from Port Said, Constantinople, Naples, even Paris and London poured into the city. The French officers' mess imported potted palms, bamboo furniture, and Cochin-China mess boys—creating an Oriental oasis in Greece.

The moon over the Aegean was very bright, the semi-tropic breeze was very soft, and the fighting was well up in the hills of Serbia. So for two years the Salonika front marked time, while the farmers of Macedonia sneaked out on both sides of the lines to plant their tobacco and their poppies and reap their opium.

Weakest Link.

AT LAST, in the summer of 1918, the Allies woke up to the fact that the weakest link in the defenses of the Central Powers was through Serbia against Bulgaria and Austria, via the Salonika front. And the Serbs, finally unleashed against the enemy and once more on the hills of their homeland, charged with such speed through Macedonia that they lived on the breadwagons of the Austrians. French, British and Italians were left behind; only the Scottish Women's hospitals could keep up with the Serbs.

A few days later Bulgaria, then Austria sued for a separate peace. The war was virtually over.

Today there is no doubt on either side regarding the importance of Salonika. Hitler knows that from it he can dispatch scores of pocket submarines to wreak havoc on British ships in the Mediterranean, plus scores of bombing planes to blast Suez, Crete, and Cairo.

And the British know that if they lose this key port to the eastern Mediterranean, their battle to preserve the life-line of the Empire is practically lost.

So Salonika, dusty, lustful, sprawling key to victory in the last war, may bring victory or defeat in this war.

Merry-Go-Round.

DEFENSE-SCREENED congressional attacks on the labor laws have inspired a unique counter-move by certain New Dealers—a proposal that some defense orders be awarded to unions, who would rent plants and machinery to produce the supplies. . . . Secretary Claude Wickard now outranks Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt, but in 1933 Wickard was an Indiana state senator when McNutt was the all-powerful governor cracking a whip over the legislature. . . . With politics shelved for a time, McNutt is tending strictly to his job. . . . Ed Foley, handsome young general counsel of the treasury, works in shirt sleeves in his office. . . . The widespread report that Captain Eddie Rickenbacker was in the control room of the sleeper plane that crashed recently at Atlanta is untrue. He was sitting up in the spare compartment talking to the steward. Neither knew the ship was in danger. . . . Big Jim Farley is keeping hundreds of friends abreast of his Latin American tour with postcards written in his famous green ink. Jim's voluminous mail must be a good stroke of business for the postcard makers.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—One of the most amusing scenes of any comedy on Broadway takes place in the first act of "Claudia" with Donald Cook, Frances Starr, and Dorothy McGuire particapting. This is a comedy of young marriage, and Dorothy McGuire (the bride) announces suddenly that the bank has made a mistake of $102 in her account and she intends to write them a letter about it at once.

"Don't be silly," her husband (Cook) tells her. "Banks don't make mistakes. If they made the mistake of one penny they'd stay up all night."

"Then you admit they do make mistakes?"

"Nothing of the sort, they don't make mistakes."

"Why don't they?"

"Because," Don replies, "they use adding machines."

"What's that got to do with it!" cries Dorothy. "Julia uses a washing machine and look what happened to your shirts last week."

* * *

THIS goes on for some minutes and Dorothy turns to her mother (Frances Starr) and to her husband and holds up a letter. "I've written the bank about that mistake," she says, "see if you think it sounds all right. . . . 'My dear Gentlemen,'" she begins to read, but her mother interrupts her.

"Just say 'Gentlemen.'"

"Or just 'my dear,'" wisecracks her husband. Whereupon he rises and goes through her account book and points out where she has neglected to enter a check for the missing amount.

THIS comedy is one of three new plays all dealing with young married life. It points, perhaps, a trend away from the heaviness of war and conflicting ideologies that have infected most playwrights in recent seasons. It is light, simple, and its whole structure is based on charm. For this observer's money it is the nicest evening in the theater in all New York.

THE Eaves costume shop, in 46th street, which costumes a majority of New York's plays, advertises "two million buttons" and an exhaustive library of costumes, ranging through the centuries.

We called on them this morning and Mr. T. Lanzill, the manager, took us through the establishment. He showed us costumes dating back to the 16th century. You can dress as a rabble poet of the Paris gutters of 1603 or as a Neopolitan dandy of 1743 or as one of Teddy Roosevelt's rough riders simply by stating a preference. No costume, he assured us, is too remote to hope for.

He showed us the early Dutch rags worn by Walter Huston in "Knickerbocker Holiday." There were the bleak, New England frocks worn by Ruth Gordon in "Ethan Frome." He had the silly, picturesque costumes of "White Horse Inn," and the bright shining armor that Katharine Cornell had for "St. Joan."

It's an eye-opening display.

A Farmer's Diary

An Aid to Memory

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ONE of great-uncle Malachi's seven sons came to him one day and said, "Old Jake Cruthers says for us to go ahead and pasture our cattle in that hilly field, just so's we put up two strands of wire along the south and a solid gate between. He says he won't use that ground this year and we might's well get the good of it."

Uncle Malachi nodded his big gray head thoughtfully, then slowly took an old envelope and a stubby pencil from his pocket and wrote one single line. "Get Jake to sign this—then go ahead and build the fence," he said. "Jake and I can get along. He's a good neighbor to me. His memory's poor, though, and gets him into trouble with folks he deals with. He knows I'm funny about puttin' everything in writin', and he won't forget if he signs his name to somethin'."

Then, with a twinkle in his eye, old Malachi added: "Listen boy, it's a good rule, in all your dealin', not to take a man's word without his bond—even if one's as good as the other. I only went to school 47 days in my life, and learned to read and write—but I've well nigh graduated from the school Experience keeps, and even a fool that's learned there gets well educated.

"Word o' mouth agreements can make plenty o' trouble. There was Jim and Nancy, neighbors of our, years ago. They moved onto Nancy father's farm when they first got married and Nancy's mother died. Nancy's pa was a pretty good sort and he treated 'em right. Jim didn't take to farmin' and wanted to move on a little place nearer town and go to work on the railroad, inspectin' tracks. He'd been offered the job.

"But Nancy liked the old home farm and her pa told her to stay where she was and fix things to suit herself. He said there was nobody he'd rather see in the kitchen her ma used to keep than Nancy—and she knew it was true and didn't feel like insistin' that he make a will or put things down in writin'. You know how 'tis!

"Well Jim and Nancy put on a new roof, and mended the fences and enlarged the house. She went ahead as her pa had said, "like it was he own." But it wasn't!

"Then Nancy's pa met a lonesome widow and married again. Soon afterward he died. That left Nancy and Jim and the old home farm and a new stepmother!

"Long and short of it was, Jim and Nancy moved out, one cold winter day and started over from scratch, down by the tracks. The old place was sold for what it would bring — and even with Nancy's improvements, it didn't bring enough to satisfy the widow."

Fugitive on a Dude Ranch + +

By Stephen Payne

CHAPTER XXXI

"What girl, Sol?" Maxwell knew to whom Sol referred but he was enjoying the old-timer's bewilderment.

"Her in Cabin One who claims she's Marcia Farnsworth? . . . . My stars and suspenders! Have—have we been took in?"

"It's all right, Sol. She's Nancy Eleanor Smith ,out here under an assumed name to dodge a slicker her silly stepmother wants her to marry. There you have the whole story." .

"Huh? How the devil do you know this girl who ain't Miss Farnsworth is Nancy Eleanor Smith?"

Maxwell was taken aback. "How do I know? Well—Well—now you mention it, I've only Tony's word for it."

"Only Tony's word for it? And Tony's the biggest liar—er-uh . . . Well, he is, and that's that. How'd he know who she was? How could he know?"

"I suppose he'd asked her." Maxwell was now more dismayed than his host. "Great Scott! If I've made another mistake I'll go nuts."

"Come on!" old Sol grunted and the two men marched determinedly to Cabin Number One, where quite unexpectedly Mrs. Perriwell met them with the abrupt statement, "Sol, that ranch buyer's up already and he's raising the roof because his car's gone."

"His car gone? Barclay's car gone?" Old Sol stammered blankly. "By dogies, it must be — I don't see it no place."

"I was the first one to miss that car," said Ruth Perriwell. "Whoever took Barclay's automobile left a can of beans where it had been parked, also an old blue sweater around a bundle of some kind.

Old Sol muttered, "A trade rat, huh?"

"I don't get this talk about trade rat," ejaculated Maxwell.

"I'll explain about trade rats later," said the ranchman. "Right now—Ma, you go into this cabin. Wake up that girl and get her into her clothes. Me and Maxwell's got somethin' to ask her."

"What about?" demanded Mrs. Perriwell. "I can't burst in on a guest and order her to dress. Sol, are you drunk or—?"

"Look!" Sol Perriwell flipped his newspaper in front of his wife's eyes, a stubby, shaking forefinger pointing out the pictures of Marcia Louise Farnsworth. "Now, Ma, will you drag out that girl?"

"Will I!" said Ruth Perriwell.

At the stable, Slim Cummings had led out two saddled horses. A moment he stood gazing in wrath and bewilderment toward Cabin No. 1. Then, dropping the bridle reins, he strode that way with a fiery glint in his eyes and a far-from-pleased expression on his lean brown face.

* * *

A stocky rider on a tall bay horse, accompanied by a gentleman in city clothes, who somehow strongly resembled a bulldog, rode across the Jim Creek bridge and stopped at the cookhouse. Both men dismounted, but only Sheriff Crowder jingled his spurs across the dining room to the kitchen where he found both Ike Skittles and Nancy Eleanor Smith.

"Mornin' Ike? Howdy, ma'am?" greeted the sheriff. "Hi! What you lookin' at there?"

He saw only an innocuous can of beans, a faded blue sweater over the back of a chair, and lying on the seat of the chair, a large brown envelope which had been ripped open, thus exposing typewritten sheets of white paper and several pictures.

"Mornin', Chalk? Ike Skittles drawled, reaching into his hip pocket for his plug. "This stuff is part of the loot which was stole offen this ranch night afore last!"

"You don't say!" ejaculated Crowder. "I got Tony's note, which is one reason I'm here . . . That's Maxwell's piece for his paper, huh? . . . Hey, don't pocket your tobacco till I get a whack at it, Ike . . . I got some dope myself. Yep. A brand spankin' fresh telegram from that feller in Philadelphia, Wm. F. Waller, describin' the crook he wants me to lock up." mind, and the character of Amer-

"Uh-huh-huh," grunted Ike. "You lost the last 'un, I 'member. . . . Here's my plug, Chalk."

Nancy had become quite still, as still as towering White Cap Peak itself, but Crowder scarcely noticed her. "If I lose this tel'gram no harm done," he remarked with a grin. "I memorized 'er. I did. Say, where'd this part of the stuff as was stole come from? Who got it? . . .Ike, what's goin' on up to that first cabin?"

"Uh, what is?" Ike stepped across the dining room to look out at the door. "Bluster my fetlocks! Sol and the missus, Maxwell and Slim, Tony and Barclay all bunched up thar! Hi, Chalk, Miss Farnsworth's come out and I heard her say kinda loud and mad, 'Ask Tony who I am. He knows!' . . . Come on Chalk. Come on, Bobbie. Who's that as come with you, Chalk?"

Chalk Crowder neglected to answer the question. But he beckoned to the stranger who had accompanied him to the T Slash, and followed old Ike at a run.

Nancy, however, remained where she was, biting her pretty lower lip and staring at the torn envelope, sweater and can of beans that Mrs. Perriwell had left in the kitchen. "I found these where Barclay's car was parked last night," she had reportetd. "The car's missing!"

Quite suddenly Cinders Malloy Sturgis appeared at the door. "Even though I'm now a guest," he began, "I'll go on seeing if I can't master the rural art of milking. . . Bobbie, what——?" His eyes had found the articles on the chair.

"Cinders, it's a showdown. I knew it would come, but I'd hoped against hope the securities might ——" Nancy's voice trailed off.

"Showdown? I don't get it, Bobbie. Of course I saw the sheriff and another fellow—deputy maybe, though he looks like a city man—were here and half the ranch bunched at Miss Farnsworth's cabin, yet—what's that stuff? Why, it's—it's Maxwell's manuscript and pictures! That blue sweater belongs to Maxwell, too. I used it to wrap up the stuff."

Yes, Cinders. It's not—not my jewelry, and——"

"Bobbie, did—did somebody find this—this package where you'd hidden it?"

"Just what I'm asking myself, Cinders. We'll see. We must see!"

Darting to the flour bin, Nancy plunged both hands and arms, bare to the shoulder, deep into the soft flour and from the bin brought forth a small bundle wrapped in cloth, but so coated with flour it was impossible to tell the true color of his cloth or exactly what it might be. When she opened the bundle, exposed lay her own pearl necklace, her bracelet, her rings, her brooch, jeweled wrist watch and lastly well-filled envelope.

With trembling fingers the excited girl drew from this envelope certain stocks and bonds. She noted the value of each. The total ran up to $200,000. Here were the securities of the three Smith girls, Nancy, Elizabeth and Jane! Here also was $50,000 in stocks and bonds that belonged to Mrs. Pauline Stevenson Huntington-Smythe.. The identical securities that Nancy had left in her stepmother's dresser in Philadelphia that night when she had left for Wyoming.

Nancy's voice was a husky whisper as she asked, "This—this is what you slipped to me to hide, Cinders?"

"No, Bobbie. I never saw—"

"What's going on here?" demanded Tony Perriwell at the dining-room door behind them. At his shoulder stood Smoothie Dick Barclay.

Nancy turned; Cinders turned. In appearance and feeling, they were the guiltiest pair ever to face stern accusers. And Tony was instantly the accuser.

"The—the missing jewels!" he shouted. "The stolen jewels! And the thieves!"

Barclay said nothing. Yet Nancy saw this man's chiseled features lose their impassivity. His eyes dilated, his ceeks twitched, his lips tightened; rushing blood crimsoned his neck and his face.

Heavy steps crossed the dining room. Into the kitchen walked Sheriff Chalk Crowder and the stranger whom the sheriff had not yet introduced. Following these two came Sol Perriwell, old Ike, Mrs. Perrivell, Kirk Maxwell, Slim Cummings, and Roberta Rowland.

Roberta was first to speak. "Why there's the missin' necklace—and all the rest of the things and that envelope you told me about, Miss-er-Bobbie."

"Yes," said Tony, his popeyes fixed on Cinders and Nancy. His face underwent a miraculous change as it broke into a broad smile for the girl known here as Marcia Louise Farnsworth. "What are those papers it looks like Bobbie has hauled out of the envelope? We-ll, I recovered everything for you, my sweetheart, and I caught the thieves red-handed with the loot!"

"These two here's the thieves?" asked Chalk Crowder, indicating Cinders and Nancy.

"Can't you see they are?" Tony was enjoying himself. "See the flour scattered all over. They'd hid the plunder in the flour bin. Your coming this morning, Sheriff, scared the crooks. They decided to beat it with the swag, but didn't quite make it. All's clear now except who stole Kirk Maxwell's manuscript."

Spoke the sheriff, "That sure ain't clear. Why any mug would swipe worthless stuff like writin' and pictures, then get sick of his bargain and leave the truck on the ranch where he stole it is danged peculiar . . . Say, Miss," turning to Roberta Rowland, "what'd you say your real name was?"

"I told you, Sheriff," snapped Tony. "I told Ma and everybody who she is. She's Nancy Eleanor Smith, soon to be Mrs. Anthony Thomas Perriwell. I've told you why she came here under the Farnsworth name. Now, darn it, let her alone! . . . I hear a car. Somebody's coming. I'll see who it is."

With this Tony went out quickly and Barclay sidled over toward Cinders and Nancy. Like a flash, the girl slipped between the two men. "Keep your distance!"

"Yes. Get away from me!" barked Cinders. "Get away from Bobbie. Or—" Up came two fists.

Recalling how hard were the fists of Cinders Malloy Sturgis, and also how the ruddy-faced young man had deprived him of his "rod," Smoothie Dick obeyed with alacrity.

The man who had come with Sheriff Crowder strode over to the table and looked at the loot on display. The jewelry received only a cursory examination; the stocks and bonds held his interest. However, his heavy-didded eyes revealed nothing of what he might be thinking and his bulldog face retained its soolidity.

Mrs. Perriwell broke the silence. "By the way, Mr. Barclay, I found this can of beans where your car was parked. Some one has penciled 'Wise Guy' on the label. Does that give you a hint or a clue?"

"Beans? 'Wise Guy'? the man repeated blankly. Then he gasped, "Well, I'll be——" and bit off the rest with a click of his teteth.

"The words 'RAT' and Double crosser' are penciled on that torn envelope, Mr. Barclay," said Nancy with pointed emphasis.

Sheriff Crowder blustered, "Reckon I've got two arrests to make. I reckon——"

"Tony!" Mrs. Perriwell cried. A sound from the dining room had caused her to turn and look into the farther room. "Tony, what's hit you so hard of a sudden?"

When Anthony Thomas Perriwell had rushed outside, he saw Halfaday Hank crossing the Jim Creek bridge in his stake car. As Halfaday threw on his brakes, Tony was beside the auto. "Lo, Hank? Bring out any telegrams?"

"Why, yeh, Tony," said Halfaday Hank, "I done so. But that wasn't my reason for comin'. I had me a passenger. That old coot a-snoozin' in the back seat . . . He's got bats in his belfry or somethin' . . . Crowder here?"

"Yes, he's here, Hank. The wire! Where is it?"

"Here it be, Tony. For Miss Roberta Rowland, the new hired gal."

"Let me take it to her, Hank."

"Okay."

Seizing the telegram Tony bolted into the dining room, there to rip open the envelope and read:

"Roberta Rowland: Jimtown, Wyoming. Yours received. You're crazy if you believe that a photograph of Nancy Eleanor Smitsh. I never saw that girl in my life.

"Pauline S. H. Smythe."

Tony uttered a painful, strangled cry like that of a mortally wounded animal. Rallying in an instant, he thrust the telegram into his pocket and gulped, "Nothing's the matter, Ma."

"Is too somethin' the matter," announced Halfaday Hank at the outer door. "What business you got, Tony, a-readin' telegrams that ain't yourn? By heifers, I'll—"

"Shut up, Hank Shut up," pleaded Tony huskily,and to escape the veteran stage driver bolted into the kitchen. Halfaday followed, but neglected to accuse Tony a second time because there was too much else of interest taking place in the kitchen of the T Slash dude ranch.

BETHANY CIRCLE ELECTS OFFICERS

Mrs. George Ingram to Head Presbyterian Church Women's Group; Luncheon Served at Mrs. Louis Ott's Home.

OFFICERS of Bethany circle of the First Presbyterian church were unanimously elected yesterday afternoon during the business meeting which followed a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Louis J. Ott, 759 Woodhill road. They are Mrs. George Ingram, president; Mrs. Gordon Colby, vice president; Mrs. Harvey Bailey, secretary, and Mrs. L. C. McCullough, treasurer.

Mrs. Charles Farry, retiring president, conducted the routine session, and Mrs. Ingram introduced Rev. David N. Roller church pastor, who spoke on "History of the Church." He told of the breaking away from the Roman Catholic church which occurred during the periods of the Reformation and Renaissance. The earliest attempts were simply to write the Bible in a language that the common people could understand, the speaker pointed out.

Efforts were first made by such men as Martin Luther, Rev. Roller explained, to create a reform within the church which had drifted into corrupt political machinations.

In his talk the pastor told that John Calvin, French lawyer and theologian living in Geneva, started to interpret the Bible and establish the doctrines that the state and the church should be ruled by the people. Luther stood for the goodness of God while Calvin stood for the supremacy of God and promoted the theories of civil liberties and democracy.

"John Knox, a Scottish reformer," Roller said, "proposed 'religion through Christian education,' and he originated the present form of church government." With the ascension of Henry VIII and the establishment of the Church of England. Puritanism grew up as a new form of Calvinism.

It was during the reign of James I that the Westminster assembly was held, and the church precepts now followed, with some alteration, were set up. In conclusion Rev. Roller described the influence of the Presbyterian church, especially in this country.

The final meeting of the year will be an Italian luncheon April 8 with Mrs. R M. Calene, 132 Parkwood bouleveard, as hostess Dr. Elisabeth Mainzer will speak on "Impressions of Palestine."

Shopping Around...

With MARIANNE

THIS SPRING is no different from any other when it comes to navy blue, because it looks as though it will be "the" important color once again. . . . An unusual treatment of it can be seen in a dress at one of the local shops—fashioned along simple tailored lines, the bodice of the frock is brightened with white yarn stitching, and the all-around knife-pleated skirt has a row of the stitching in each pleat. . . . Still in the realm of blue, but to digress a little from navy to a lighter shade, I saw a most attractive two-piece suit while downtown shopping yesterday. . . . In a heaven blue tone, the suit had a fitted not-too-long jacket, which closed with silver rimmed buttons, while the skirt featured two front pleats.

Marianne

And since it's a navy spring, of course there are many hats in that color too. . . . Many of the gay little dressy ones are smart with touches of white. . . . For instance, one I saw in straw was an off-the-face style, and it had a bunch of white pique posies right in the center. . . . Another small hat of a little rougher straw was trimmed with two perky bows of starched white pique and a dotted blue veil. . . . Any number of the bonnet hats in navy straw have sprays of dainty spring flowers to frame the face. . . . And speaking of larger hats, many of them this spring are made from grosgram ribbon in a variety of shapes and styles.

* * *

You'll probably want a new compact to carry with your spring outfit, and if so, you're in luck, because they're showing ever so many pretty ones downtown now. . . . There are oval snuff boxes, which come enameled in white, navy blue, peach or green and they're decorated with pastel flowers. . . . Then you can also get a variety of shapes and sizes in these compacts, which are trimmed with a white scroll and leaf design. . . . Another type of pastel compact features a bird design on top, and it is made of Danish silver. . . . In case you like a really large compact, you'll be delighted with those flat pancake-sized ones of gold, silver or blue, which feature a quilted design on top, and those of polished silver that are decorated with an etched scroll pattern.

* * *

A GRAND PERFUME for springtime loveliness is "Woodhue," a sweetly romantic scent, which can be worn simply and sincerely with most any type of dress as it will last for long hours and never be obtrusive. . . . Its fragrance is interpreted in perfume, cologne, bath oil and dusting powder, and just recently in a lighter "daytime perfume" which is very lasting and suitable for daytime frocks and daytime doings. You can get it in all several sizes—from little purse flacons with pigskin jackets to handsome crystal flacons for dressing table use—and all sizes have screw-on, leak-proof tops of natural burl walnut.

WITHOUT a doubt, you've had a strenuous winter—you've worked hard and played hard and it's been a lot of fun, but, one morning soon, you'll awaken to find it's spring. . . . And it's then you'll realize with dismay how shamefully you've neglected your hair—how badly it needs care and attention. . . . The bright spring sunlight reveals a dull, lusterless thatch with split, broken ends and general listlessness. . . . Fortunately, however, there is a group of seven sister scalp specialists who can show you how to change this discouraging picture and put your hair in harmony with all the blossoming fast-approaching spring world. . . . And so you'll be pleased to learn that one of the local department stores and several beauty salons are featuring this line of hair essentials. . . . With preparations for all kinds of hair needs, one of these sisters' newest features is a "highlights hairinse." A little of this golden liquid in the last rinse water after your shampoo will leave a thousand highlights in your hair and make it easier to comb and set. . . . For every type and color of hair, this rinse does not change the shade of your hair in any way—but uncovers hidden highlights and gives a sheen and luster to waves and curls. . . . And so that you may become properly acquainted with these scalp preparations, the sisters have introduced the Fifth Avenue Hair Kit, which sells at a very low price. These kits are personalized for each type of hair requirement and contain a special hair preparation for cleansing, a choice of lotions for dry, oily or devitalized hair, scarp pomade for lubricating the scalp and "cremeset," which is wonderful for dry ends.
